DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1 to 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schrems.

The Schrems reference teaches a method of predicting oxygen contents in cz silicon wafers, note entire reference. After formation of a silicon wafer by the czochralski method, calculations are performed on the wafer. The initial concentration of oxygen is taken and a thermal history is done. From these parameters, a calculation can be done to determine the density and amount of precipitation of oxygen when the heating is actually done note pages 400,402. The sole difference between the instant claims and the prior art is the specific heat treatment temperatures. However, in the absence of unexpected results, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to determine through routine experimentation the optimum, operable heat treatment range in the Schrems reference in order to best determine the oxygen concentration and behavior so that better results are obtained.

Claims 4 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schrems.

The Schrems reference is relied on for the same reasons as stated, supra, and differs from the instant claims in the storage medium. However, in the absence of unexpected results, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to determine through routine experimentation the optimum, operable way to do the calculations in the Schrems reference in order to speed the results.
